Gateway: the Entertainment and Retail Hub at the "Intersection" of University and City Life

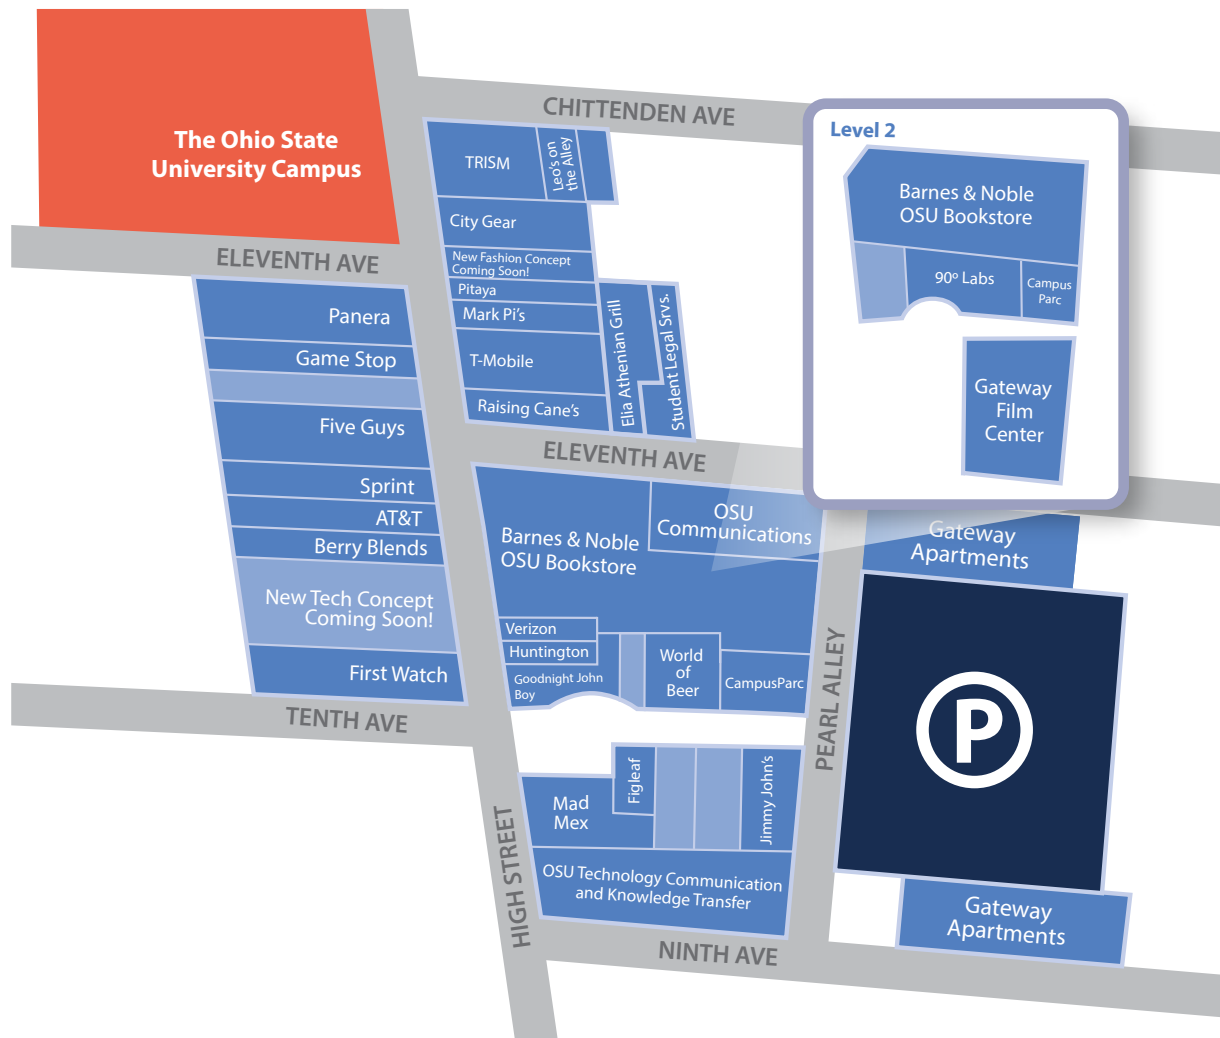

Gateway – University District is located on High Street, the city's major North/South thoroughfare. It is adjacent to the revitalization project on High Street which is currently underway, spanning from 15th and High to the intersection of King Avenue. This promises to make the University District one of the most dynamic mixed-used corridors in Columbus by 2020. The Gateway is the gathering space that brings it all together, with the perfect mix of dining, outdoor events and festivals as well as local, regional and national retailers. Anchoring the property is the non-profit Gateway Film Center, which boasts the Sundance designation.

More than just a destination for students, faculty and staff, the Gateway's core customers trend from Young Professionals to GenXers and Baby Boomers, many of whom are distinct and diverse cosmopolitan consumers residing in the adjacent neighborhoods comprising the densest residential population in the state.

The Ohio State University was established in 1870 and is one of the nation's top 20 public universities, according to U.S. News & World Report. The student body totals nearly 60,000 across 15 colleges, 2000 undergraduate majors, and 250 master's, doctoral and other professional degree programs. The Wexner Medical Center is recognized as a top-rated academic and medical institution, and The James as a premier cancer hospital and research center.

Campus Partners
building potential

Campus Partners was formed in 1995 as a 501(c) 3, private, non-profit corporation working in the urban neighborhoods surrounding the Ohio State University. Its mission is to revitalize distressed neighborhoods within the University District of Columbus, Ohio. Campus Partners aims to improve the quality of life for students, faculty, staff, residents, and business owners throughout the university community, thereby reinforcing the stature of The Ohio State University as one of the world's great public research and teaching universities.
